Bishop Paul's Easter Message

In his classic, The Hobbit, Tolkien writes, "There is nothing like looking, if you want to find something. You certainly usually find something, if you look, but it is not always quite the something you were after."

"Jesus said to Mary Magdalene, 'Woman, why are you weeping? For whom are you looking?' Supposing him to be the gardener, she said to him, 'Sir, if you have carried him away, tell me where you have laid him, and I will take him away.' Jesus said to her, 'Mary!'"

With that single word the search was over, the despair was gone, the mystery of the ages unfolding before her very eyes. And in no time at all Mary was with the other disciples announcing, 'I have seen the Lord!'

There has never been an announcement with more far reaching implications for the entire human race than those few simple words, spoken from a heart that had been flooded with an irreversible hope.

Hope is in very short supply for many people, often for intensely personal reasons. On a national level the uncertainty over Brexit, whatever your political viewpoint, is only feeding the fears that diminish a sense of hope.

Only perfect love can drive out fear. And only an undying hope can overcome despair. This is why the Cross of Christ and the Empty Tomb are the shining symbols of our faith. And the most significant contribution any of us can make in reducing the world deficit of hope, is to nurture this faith and announce it with the same joy as Mary Magdalene.

We need to recover a sense of personal wonder if we are to help others to see the compelling significance of the events of that first Easter morning.

The writer Eugene Peterson puts it like this, "It is not easy to convey a sense of wonder, let alone resurrection wonder, to another. It's the very nature of wonder to catch us off guard, to circumvent expectations and assumptions. Wonder can't be packaged, and it can't be worked up. It requires some sense of being there and some sense of engagement."

Church launches Holy Communion in Persian language of Farsi

What would bring 600 people, mostly aged 20-40, and mostly men, to Wakefield Cathedral on a Saturday afternoon.

A rock concert or the visit of a well-known celebrity? No. Wakefield Cathedral was filled for the launch of the Eucharistic Prayer in the Persian language of Farsi.

The service was led by Bishop Paul Butler, Bishop Guli Francis-Dehqani and Bishop Toby Howorth. Over 50 Iranians and church leaders from Nottingham South Deanery attended and five members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Denmark were also there.

The Danish delegation are all involved with helping migrants and spent the weekend at St Stephen's with St Paul's Church, Hyson Green, discussing the ways both countries and churches are responding to asylum seekers and refugees.

The Revd Clive Burrows, of St Stephen's with St Paul's, said: "It was a wonderful way to bring together Persian Christians from all over England to celebrate the communion service being made available in their mother tongue."

One of the Iranians who travelled from Hyson Green said: "Finally,

I know exactly what is being said whenever I take communion."

Authorised by the House of Bishops, the publication of the Farsi language service affirms the presence of Iranians in churches as a gift, and demonstrates commitment to welcoming them into the life of the Church of England.

The new liturgy is designed to be used alongside English language liturgy, with both languages printed side by side.

The Bishop of Loughborough, Guli Francis-Dehqani, who came to the UK from Iran with her family when she was 14 years old following the 1979 revolution, presided at the service and conveyed messages from the Archbishops of Canterbury and York.

Her father was the late Bishop Hassan Dehqani-Tafti, the first Persian Bishop in Iran, who was forced into exile after an attempt on his life and the murder of his only son.

The new liturgy is available on the Church of England website.

Workplace Sunday - celebrating God's gift of work

The Revd Jo Tatum, Nottingham Workplace Chaplain writes:

Workplace Sunday – 5th May – will be an opportunity to celebrate God's gift of work and to support working people by recognising God's calling on our lives, wherever he has placed us. Yet for so many people the world of work can be a dull and unfulfilling place, for them the notion of God being interested or involved in their workplace is hard to imagine.

Here is an opportunity to encourage a different perspective that will make an impact where they are throughout the week, recognising their daily work as a vital part of God's wider story.

Following Jesus is often challenging in the workplace, where we are surrounded by people of no faith or other faiths. This coming Workplace Sunday can be the opening of a time to reflect on how our discipleship can be deepened where we work. As we share the challenges with our own church community, urging each other on as 'fellow workers' as St Paul often encouraged fellow disciples of Christ.

Churches are encouraged to mark Workplace Sunday on 5th May and a selection of resources (links below) have been gathered to help them. There are ideas for Sundays/workshops or sessions or courses that might be shared amongst small groups over the weeks to come.

Giving the Church a voice

Nottingham Citizens is an alliance of 37 member organisations and a strategic partner of the Diocese. We bring together people from churches, mosques, synagogues, schools, universities, unions and other third sector organisations to tackle justice issues that our members care about. Community organising is a vital tool in giving the Church a voice to be able to speak truth to power and to equip people with the skills with which they can be the agents of their own change. We are currently developing a Diocesan-wide training offer which we hope to launch in the autumn with a view to equipping more of our churches with the practical tools to built relationships, develop leadership skills and make a difference locally.

Our current priority areas are addressing mental health issues, tackling in-work poverty through the living wage and wider employment practices, and developing provision for young people in the city. Next month brings 2019's largest and most significant local political gathering of the year, as member institutions congregate with Nottingham's decision makers to win justice on some of the areas mentioned above in the run up to the local elections. Admission to the 25 April event at Trent Vineyard is by ticket only, with priority given to our members institutions. If your church or school are not currently engaged with community organising in the Diocese we would love to welcome you there as a VIP.

Resilience and restoration in Burundi

Rosemary Cottingham of St Mark's, Woodthorpe writes:

Resilience isn't a word we hear used very much today. Defined as the capacity to recover quickly from difficulties; the process of adapting well in the face of adversity, trauma or tragedy, it aptly describes people in Burundi.

At the beginning of this year fire completely destroyed the main market in Matana with disastrous consequences for the community around. Families and individuals, including many pastors and Church teachers lost their main means of income. More than 350 people not only lost the goods they sold but also money they kept saved there.

The area around Matana is rural and so most people live by subsistence farming. Life is precarious and poverty levels are high. Income generation is essential for survival. The market is a hub for the community as well as being a place where business is carried out. People buy their daily supplies of food, clothes and shoes, school uniforms, exercise books and other school materials, baskets, furniture and many other essential items. It is where parts for cars can be found and bicycles repaired.

Matana Market destroyed by fire

Starting again

Matana was one of the first Anglican mission stations founded in the 1930s and the Church is an integral part of the community. Very quickly the Diocese of Matana, led by its Bishop, the Rt. Revd Seth Ndayirukiye, looked for ways to respond to the disaster. They began to support those most affected by giving small sums of money so that they could restore some form of business in order to generate income once again or sort out loans they had with banks or through micro finance.

Helping to bring restoration in practical ways in the face of seemingly endless challenges is the Gospel in action reflecting God's purpose to restore broken lives. It is the ongoing work of the Church to minister to the many who witnessed atrocities during the years of civil war, the child soldiers, widows, victims of rape and other forms of gender based violence, those with HIV, the illiterate, and many others.

Remarkable stories are shared by young men and women who, in the face of adversity, poverty and tragedy have found a restored sense of purpose and hope and have qualified as doctors, teachers, lawyers, and Church leaders. It will not be long before similar stories are told by stall holders in Matana market!

For Mary the moment of wonder is not when she swallows a new doctrine but when she meets her risen Saviour, and he addresses her by name. Something in his voice instantly catches her attention. This is the moment her ears and eyes are opened – when the Good Shepherd calls his sheep they know his voice.

When someone very close to us dies it's often hearing them use our name that we miss the most – no one else could speak it with so much understanding or more intimately.

This is our Easter faith: Jesus knows us personally. He knows all about our fears and our moments of despair. And he calls us by name, often in ways that surprise us or when we least expect. The cross and resurrection of Jesus are about the restoration of relationship and the wonder of knowing God.

Our world needs urgently to find a fresh source of living hope, perhaps especially our young people who are growing up with uncertainty about the future and far too much stress in the present, often leading to self-doubt.

This is why our 72 Church Schools in this diocese are vital incubators of hope, seeking to provide not only the best educational outcomes but doing that in the context of a hopeful vision for life, grounded in the wisdom and love of Christ. I urge us to pray regularly for all teachers and parents in their precious vocation to nurture this hope.

There are no 'A*'s for having a love that casts out fear or prizes for possessing a hope that overcomes despair. But when young people know they are loved and have hope they thrive, and become peace-makers and world changers.

Some of us too may need to renew our hope in Christ and regain a sense of perspective over the many things that distract and discourage us, recovering a sense of personal wonder as we rejoice to announce on Easter Morning, 'Christ is risen! He is risen indeed! Alleluia!'

Bishop Paul

Start planning for Thy Kingdom Come

The prayer movement Thy Kingdom Come, which starts on Ascension Day (30th May) and runs for 10 days until Pentecost on 9th June, will see people around the world praying for others to hear and respond to the Good News of Jesus Christ.

For 2019, there are new resources, including prayer maps and journals, and a TKC app with daily prayers and reflections. To help inspire, support and resource churches in their planning for TKC 2019, two inspiration evenings are being held:

Thursday 4th April 'Church Growth through Invitation. What holds us back?' led by Michael Harvey, Director of the National Weekend of Invitation; 7.30-9.30pm, Big Barn Lane Methodist Church, Mansfield NG18 3LJ.

Thursday 11th April 'Equipped to Pray' led by the National TKC team with sample resources available to take away: 7.30-9.30pm St. Martin's church, Trevose Gardens, Sherwood, Nottingham NG5 3FU.
